

"THE VARSITY" MAY BECOME DAILY PAPER

McGill Paper Will no Longer Be "Only Daily in Canada."

STARTS NEXT YEAR

"Varsity" Will Appear Five Times a Week, But in Reduced Size

News that is of especial interest to readers of the "Only College Daily in Canada" appears in The Varsity, the Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Toronto, of February 16. A front page article in that paper states that the Varsity is likely to become a daily instead of a tri-weekly which it is at present. If this proposed change is carried through, it will mean that the well-known slogan, "the only College Daily" will have to disappear.

This impending change will be carried through if the decision arrived at by the Editorial Staff and the Advisory Board is upheld by the Joint Executive.

Following a discussion the editor read a letter from Mr. Hamilton of the University Press who said that the Press would install a linotype machine, and so equipped could handle a daily better than a tri-weekly paper. He enclosed a sample size for the new daily, having five columns and being one and a half inches shorter than the present columns.

From the description of the paper given above it may be easily seen that the Varsity will be a much smaller paper than McGill Daily. The Varsity is at present six columns in width, and in length is about an inch shorter than the "Daily." At present the Varsity is printed on glossy paper, but when it becomes a daily it is intended to use a much cheaper brand of paper.

A report from Mr. Hastings, the business manager, was then read. His report was figured on a basis of paper of the size mentioned by Mr. Hamilton. He stated in his report that to pay for this paper would have to contain nine and a half columns of advertising, and that such a paper would contain 2,772 linear inches of news per year less than at present.

The meeting then discussed whether the paper should be published five or six times a week, and decided on five issues because of the greater expense of six.

This means that the Varsity will only be increased by two copies a week at at present it appears three times during the course of seven days.

It was then decided that, in compliance with Mr. Hamilton's recommendation, the paper should be one of five columns to a page, each column to measure seventeen and a half inches instead of nineteen inches.

The question of advertising was then taken up, and the meeting decided that they would not support a daily of the

INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE MONDAY

'Varsity Appears to Have a Strong Team

The first round of the Intercollegiate debates will be held on February 26th when McGill will be visited by two Varsity debaters and will also send two men to argue with Queen's. The subject is "Industrial Revolution."

The McGill team will consist of Penrose, Arts '25; Everett, Arts '25; Batshaw, Law '24, and Clark, President of the Theological Undergrads. Which pair of debaters will debate at home has not yet been decided. Penrose and Everett of Arts '25 are well known to be followers of inter-faculty debating, while Clark is a prominent figure among the theologians and spoke several times at the last Mock Parliament. Batshaw, of Law '24, was a member of the Law '24 debating team and is a forceful speaker.

The team from Toronto appears to be a strong one. E. W. McInnes, who has recently been selected as the P.E.I. Rhodes Scholar, is a speaker and writer of note. He is a member of the Varsity staff, and has already published a collection of poems under the title "The Road to Anas." Among his honors he is able to include the Jardine Memorial Prize for English verse and the George Orad Scholarship given in Knox College for English Bible.

Guest, his colleague is a prominent inter-faculty debater and is a member of the team which performed the feat of winning from the Osgoode Hall Law School team. He is president of the Royal Dental Society at Varsity.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED BY CHEM. SOC.

Committee Explains System of Selection

EXCELLENT ESSAYS

Interesting Address Given by Mr. McRae

The monthly meeting of the Society was held last night. In the absence of the chairman, Dr. McLean, Mr. Horner presided. The most important business item was the announcement of the winners of the prize offered for the best summer essay. Mr. Job and Mr. Hazen spoke on the subject of the essay and explained the considerations which had guided the committee in their selection of the best essay. They said that the subject matter was not the only one in the main point. Good English, clarity, clarity of illustration and, in general the presentation of the subject in a clear manner as possible, were the essentials. They said that the winning essays were a most important factor in technical education, and that the offering of this prize was intended to encourage this side of the Chemical Engineering course.

The winner of the prize for the current year is William C. Munroe. His essay, according to the committee showed excellence in every way. Besides being clear and to the point it was written in excellent English and showed great care in revision and neatness in presentation. The essay submitted by Munroe was given second place as it did not quite come up to the standard set by Munroe.

The main business of the meeting was then proceeded with. This was a lecture on chemical patents by Mr. McRae, head of the department of chemical patents in Ottawa. He began his lecture with a quotation from Lord Bacon:

"Now among all the benefits that could be conferred on mankind, I have discovered none so great as the discovery of new arts for the bettering of human life." He then went on to describe the difficulties which lie in the path of the inventor. The theory of patent law grows out of the history of monopolies. A patent is a contract between a nation and an individual. By the contract the inventor discloses to the public the results of his intellectual work. By so doing he stimulates further research, invention and enterprise. For the benefit conferred on the nation the inventor is given in return the sole use of his invention for a period of eighteen years in Canada. Chemical patents have chiefly to do with processes and products and must embody three requisites: invention, novelty and utility.

In conclusion the importance of good patents was emphasized. It was shown that litigation is costly and prohibitive in most cases, and that for this reason the patent should be definite and accurate. To obtain such the close co-operation of the chemist and his patent attorney, and a careful examination by the patent office are imperative.

C. W. KELLY DIED AT LOUISVILLE, KY.

Dr. Wm. McCarthy Now Only Member of Med. '67 Alive

News of the death of Clinton Wayne Kelly, Med. 1867, was received yesterday morning by J. W. Jenkins, secretary of the Graduate Society, in a letter from the Chicago branch of the Alumni. Dr. Kelly for many years had been a resident of Louisville, Ky., where he had made a name for himself both as a practitioner and also as a professor of anatomy. Upon graduation from McGill he started resident in Louisville, where he was in practice for over half a century, being connected with the Civil War Veterans. Of late the doctor was Emeritus Professor of Anatomy at the University of Louisville.

It was learned that there is only one other graduate of the class of '67 still alive, being Dr. Wm. McCarthy of Chicago, whom the McGill Alumni Association of Chicago recently honored in 1917 at the time of the 50th anniversary of his graduation.

Dr. Kelly died on January 26th at Louisville in his 78th year, from pneumonia.

FRESHMEN WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Fed. '28 Defeat Sophomore in Fresh-Soph. Final

SCORE 28-18

Teams Give Strenuous, But Otherwise Ordinary Exhibition

The finalists of the Freshman-Sophomore Basketball League last night gave a very ordinary exhibition, good basketball only appearing in flashes, and the players displaying an inclination to devote too much attention to the man and too little to the ball. The final score was 28-18 in favor of the Freshmen year.

The game was the attraction for a large crowd of students, who ranged themselves on either side of the gymnasium, lustily applauding their favorites.

In consequence of the close checking adopted by both teams, combination play was not indulged in to a great extent, the field goals being for the most part, the result of individual effort. Opportunities to pass presented themselves frequently, but the players often let them go by, when a good pass would have enhanced the possibility of scoring.

It would be extremely difficult to elect any outstanding player on either team. Martin and McKinnon, the winners, Riordan replaced Snow.

For the losers, Tanzman and Dunn were best, the latter having hard luck with his shots, many of which skirted the ring without dropping through.

The result was a distinct surprise to a number of the spectators, the Freshmen team not being conceded much chance of defeating the Sophomores.

From the face-off, it became apparent that those who had predicted a walkover for Med. '27, were guilty

TO DISCUSS CONSTITUTION OF ATHLETICS

Students' Society Meets at 5 p.m. Wednesday

OPEN MEETING

Theatre Night Will Also be Dealt With

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 p.m. sharp, the Students' Society will hold an open meeting of the greatest importance. Questions of immediate concern to every student at the University will be discussed. The question of the revision of the Athletic Constitution which formed the main point of discussion at the last open meeting will again be brought up.

The Students' Council has not been in session during the last week and has seen the Principal, members of the faculty, and several graduates and obtained their opinions on this vital subject.

One of the immediate outcomes of this resolution, which has already passed the student body and at present merely waits ratification by those in supreme charge of athletics, will be the postponement of the election of several of the members of the Students' Council. These elections would in the ordinary course of events take place within the next few weeks, but the proposed change in the constitution would render it impossible to hold elections for certain, at least, of the members of the Council.

As this matter of a new athletic constitution concerns every student at college, it is essential that he makes it his business to attend the meeting, which has been arranged for a time when practically every man at college is free.

Another matter of importance that will come up for discussion will be the Theatre Night. All the phases of this undertaking will be dealt with, and arrangements as to staging of the feature will receive consideration.

The extreme importance of the matters that are slated for the afternoon make imperative for every man to turn out for the meeting.

VAEGWOLTIE CLUB HAD DANCE FRIDAY

Halifax Graduates' Society Held Enjoyable Affair

If the Union on Friday night was the scene of a merry informal at McGill for students of the present generation, Vaegwoltie Club at Halifax, N.S., was the meeting place of an equally enjoyable lance for graduates of McGill living in that vicinity, according to a report which came to the Daily last night from the secretary of the Halifax branch of the McGill Graduates' Society. "Forty members," the report states, "renewed their youth, sang songs that are the property of McGill students, told interesting reminiscences and danced the ancient classical dances, such as Paul Jones, College Lancers, and Sir Rodger de Coverley. Acquaintances were renewed around the cosy hearthstones, and on the whole a more enjoyable evening could hardly have been spent."

"McGill colors were carried through the decorative scheme, and the red and white which warms the hearts of her students, appeared even in various items of the menu. After the loyal toast to the King, Dr. Nicholls proposed a toast to Old McGill, telling many interesting incidents of his college days. Dr. Hattie responded in his usual eloquent fashion. A much appreciated item was contributed by Dr. Murdoch Chisholm, a graduate of 1879 in the Faculty of Medicine. He sang a Gaelic song, received an encore and then translated the terrible language. Solos were sung by Mrs. C. H. Wright and Dr. Muir. The choruses were most lusty, and in the informal parts of the program, there were certainly nobody but boys and girls in the Club House that evening."

The officers of the Halifax Branch for this year are: President—C. M. Wright. Vice-president—Dr. D. J. MacDonald. Secretary-treasurer—Dr. W. L. Muir. The executive includes: Dr. A. G. Nicholls, Prof. MacIntosh and Mrs. C. Ives.

Professor, reading Keats dramatically: "I cannot see what flowers grow at my feet." What do you make of that line, Mr. F.?"

No response. Prof., irritably: "Well, was the man blind?"

Mr. F.: "No, sir, but he must have been rather stout, sir."—The Manitoba.

BASKETEERS PREPARE FOR QUEENS GAME

McGill Quintet Set for Championship Match

PLAY M. A. A. A.

Red and White Will Probably Oppose M. A. A. A. on Wednesday

The big game of the Intercollegiate basketball season will be staged on Saturday. The Queen's team, with two wins already to its credit, is out to win the Intercollegiate title. Already they have sent the red and white quintet down to defeat, and in all probability, with the past two weeks' practice, they have developed even a more powerful delegation than the red and white team met when they invaded Kingston a few weeks ago. Since this game, however, the McGill team has developed a fighting spirit that has made them a team that is hard to beat. Toronto, on their own birdseye, with their own rosters, pulled up a nice lead, but when the warriors hit their stride the blue and white soon were left trailing by the fast-moving red and white quintet.

McGill last week won three games of basketball. Two were played in St. John, N.B., while the other was the hard-fought game in Toronto. This week they will not have to travel at all so that the men should be in better shape. A game in the City League will in all probability be played on Wednesday. It is possible that the M.A.A.A. team will line up against the McGill team in Molson Hall on Wednesday. The City League is almost finished, and if McGill is able to win this game they will be at the top of their section of the league and will meet the same M.A.A.A. team that they defeated by one point last year in the play-off. The game this Wednesday is against the M.A.A.A. team that is in the same section of the league as McGill.

It is expected that Miss Canada, who started the game in St. John, N.B., last week, will be in Montreal Saturday, and she has been already invited to start the game against Queen's. "Nuts" Nutting, the famous leader of the thundering thousand, will be at the game and the management is making every effort to handle the large crowd that is expected. In all probability the gallery will, as before, be reserved until just before the start of the game.

The intermediate A team will play the curtain raiser on Saturday when they line up against the Central Y.M.

DR. TURNER SPOKE ON HIP DISEASE

Medical Society Listened to Interesting Address

Last night, before a large and interested audience, Dr. Turner addressed the Medical Society on Hip Disease. He opened his lecture with an anatomical discussion of the femur, with special reference to the part concerned with the hip joint. He clearly explained the blood circulation in the bone and then showed how the disease usually finds footing at the point of anatomosis.

With the aid of slides he demonstrated the different kinds of dislocations and their reduction. He first dealt with congenital cases and explained treatment and result. Then, in the same clear way, he dealt with traumatic and pathological dislocation.

The members of the Society were very enthusiastic about Dr. Turner's address and felt that they benefited by it a great deal.

The meeting was held in the lecture theatre and later adjourned to the assembly hall for refreshments.

During the serving of refreshments Willard Crocker, of Med. '26, McGill's well-known tennis star introduced his new song "McGill." After playing it once, so that the students might become acquainted with the tune, Crocker led the boys in singing.

The song has a very catchy swing to it and the words are very appropriate. After singing the song a couple of times the members became quite enthusiastic and their voices lost their timid sound being overcome by enthusiasm. Mr. Crocker is certainly to be congratulated for by all indications his song is going to become very popular, especially among the student body. Those not having attended the meeting should acquaint themselves with the song in the near future so as to give it the place among the students that it merits.

A SUGGESTION.

What should prove a very valuable and highly beneficial suggestion was made by a well known graduate the other day, who advocated as a means of acquainting the graduates with the present undergraduates of the university, a series of luncheons to be held in the Union, which every graduate who could do so would be expected to be present in order to meet the students, most of whom would probably be of the senior years, who would attend. The utility of this proposal does not lie solely in the fact that it indicates an enjoyable manner of passing the luncheon hour for those who might feel inclined to take advantage of the privilege, but rather in the circumstance that the time thus passed should be mutually profitable to graduate and to undergraduate so brought together.

Such luncheons could be arranged with no great degree of trouble. They would be of an informal nature, and their proceedings of a spontaneous character. A speaker could be secured from the ranks of the graduates themselves, if such a discourse were deemed advisable. But here the graduate could have an opportunity of viewing again the college life of which he was once a part, and in which he ought still to have an active interest; he could converse with the man about the Campus, who, in his turn, would be benefited by contact with his older brother. With such an agent by which to establish touch between graduate and undergraduate bodies, there could be no cry on the one hand that, "I am a stranger at my university; its students are not known to me, and their affairs no longer mine"; nor plaint on the other that, "The graduate being no longer of us, lacks concern in the welfare of his Alma Mater. It is likely too late to accomplish anything definite this term in the way of inaugurating a programme of luncheons between graduates and undergraduates, but it might be well if the Graduates' Society and the Students' Society came to think of such a possibility for next year."

THE CRITICAL FACULTY.

The development of a critical faculty in the student is the aim of the professor. That is, the acceptance by the undergraduate of an opinion merely because of its emanation from an authoritative source is discouraged; while, on the other hand, the student is encouraged to give the facts due consideration and thus to arrive at an independent conclusion. This latter, of course, may coincide with that of the lecturer, but the fact that the scholar has used his perception renders the idea, theorem or conception part of himself and his learning a part of his active mind.

In some this critical faculty has been cultivated to an obnoxious extreme, and will not permit the credence of any statement without a preliminary argumentative discussion. While others lean to the other extreme and question nothing, and believe everything. Still another category, distinct from the two preceding classes is that of the "super-critic" who constitutes himself censor over all that may come his way, choking his enjoyment because of his unfailing tendency to criticize, inducing lack of appreciation of the central theme through attention to slight inconsistencies. His penchant is the technique: the guiding principle, the objective in view, is immaterial. In short, it may be said that although college students may be justified in an inclination to moderate criticism, yet it may be remembered this criticism is as odious in its over-abundance as is indicative of weakness in its absence.

CERCLE FRANCAIS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Will Debate on Ruhr Question

The next regular meeting of the Cercle Francais will be held tonight at 8.15 in the Reading Room of the Union.

The first part of the program is a debate on the very important and up-to-date question:

"Resolved, that the French were justified in their action in invading the Ruhr." Gaboury and Gauthier, both of Law, will support the affirmative, whilst the negative will be upheld by Mitchell of Commerce and Potter of Science.

Following the debate, Professor Perron, of Lower Canada College, will address the meeting.

Dr. Villard and Prof. DuRoiure have signified their intention of being present.

All the members are urged to arrive as closely to 8.15 as possible. As this will be one of the last meetings of the Cercle, every member should make a special effort to turn out.

Three alternatives presented themselves as means of raising the difference:

(1) Raise the advertising rates.
 (2) Raise the Students' Council fee by a dollar.
 (3) Desert the present coated paper for newsprint.

After a great deal of discussion it was decided to use newsprint till the way became clear for a change back to coated stock.

Necessary reorganization of the staff was then discussed. The only changes made were the addition to the staff of an assistant managing director, an assistant sporting editor and the increase of the local staff to ten men.

It was, however, decided to allot definite and regular duties to the associate editors.

It was decided to put the whole matter before a general meeting of the staff and then, if the staff votes in favor of a daily, to make suitable recommendations to the Joint Executive.

POOR MAN CAN MAKE LOVE

University of Southern California reveals the great secret that a poor man can now make love. This secret was revealed in the Monday's Examiner when a two-column cut bearing the picture of Maxine Swanson showed her holding enough food in her hands on which to live a week. Some of the foods that she was holding consisted of raisins, lettuce, a bar of sweet chocolate, and a few dates. It was learned that for ninety cents a person would be able to carry home a small bag full of cats that would be enough to keep a girl for one whole week. Ninety cents for seven days would mean that the expense for a day would be nearly 13 cents. Not so bad, taking into account the high cost of living.

STUDY NINE HOURS!

The average undergraduate works nine hours daily, sleeps eight and one-quarter hours and spends four hours in recreation each week day, according to data collected by The Dartmouth, the student daily of that institution. Freshmen spend more time in study: four hours forty minutes each work day, while Seniors bring this total down to three hours.

FRESHMEN HEAVE COAL

Freshmen who break student council regulations at Rhode Island State College are dealt with severely. They are punished by five to ten hours' hard work on the college coal pile. For minor offenses, the Freshmen must don baseball masks for two days, or wear placards reading "Excuse me, I cannot be polite."

STUPID STUDENTS MARRY

Bright students marry bright students and stupid students marry stupid students, according to findings at the University of Washington. The study was made from reports of 200 married graduates by the psychology department. There is, however, no correlation of intelligence between couples at a dance, according to the report, because a fellow does not choose a dancing partner on account of her intelligence.

CAN TIED TO BLIND DATE

Men at the University of Oklahoma have sworn off the blind date. No longer may the wily hostess entertain her vacant-dot visitor by trotting out the talent of the university to be bored by her. And, as is poetically just, Oklahoma women have retaliated by refusing to take a chance on being "stuck" with a goofy partner who has been represented as a "twin brother" or "best chum." "It's funny how different twin brothers can be," remarked one of the duped, sadly.

WESTMOUNT BEAT MCGILL AT HOCKEY

Intermediate Team Defeated in Close Game Saturday

SCORE 3-2

"Puss" Watt, of Westmount, Scored Deciding Goal in Last Five Minutes

With a score of 2-2 in the last period "Puss" Watt, of Westmount, fired in the deciding goal of the intermediate hockey game, McGill vs. Westmount, Saturday afternoon at the Victoria Rink. McGill started out with a lead of one goal scored by G. Pinney in the first period, but this was soon made up by Westmount when Eckstein placed a clear shot in the net. Neither team was able to make the score any greater by the time the first period bell rang.

In the second period began an exhibition of truly fast hockey, the period ending with the same score as the first, 1-1.

The third and last period was the real game. Downs started out with a goal for Westmount which was closely followed by a splendid rush on the part of McGill. Pinney shot at the goal missed it, the puck bouncing back was quickly knocked in by Abbott. This made the score 2-2. Five minutes to go, and no score. When Watt of Westmount, with a splendid long shot, managed to score another goal. No more goals being scored, the game ended with Westmount victors by one goal, 3-2.

Westmount played their best men in Watt and Connor, and McGill with Abbott, Galley (a Junior man), Pinney and Johnston.

The line-up was as follows:

HONOURS DIVIDED IN BASKETBALL GAME

The R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. basketball teams met for the second time this season on Saturday morning. The College first team won from the school by one basket after a closely contested battle, the final score being 37-35.

The M.S.P.E. second team played a steady game and defeated the second R.V.C. sextette with a score of 29-14. The M.S.P.E. forwards far outshooting their opponents in the second period.

In the first game the score was fast and the shooting continuous and occasionally brilliant. Miss K. Duff-Stuart made many spectacular shots for the school, while Miss N. McTaggart, playing her first senior game, contributed a large share of the goals. Miss J. Spier and Miss M. Leggat shot easily and very successfully for the R.V.C.

At half time the Physical Eds. had the right side of the score by a few points. During the second period the play waxed fast and furious, the spectators were tense as the ball sped from side to side; first one team and then the other made a basket. The Physical Eds' centres improved their combination, while the excellent jumping and passing of the R.V.C. players made first-class basketball from the spectators' point of view. The last few minutes of play were intensely exciting—a shot at one end, then the other—R.V.C. got a goal then the M.S.P.E. team made the score even; then the school was ahead, next the R.V.C. forged ahead, finally the winning basket was dropped through the ring, the whistle blew for time and the victory went to the college team.

ASSAULT AT ARMS SET FOR THIS WEEK

McGill's Chances Appear
Very Bright

COMM. BEATEN BY SCIENCE IN CLOSE GAME

Numerous Penalties Marred
the Game

SCORE 3-2

Luxton was the Outstanding
Player on the Ice

A fierce struggle was fought, to a bitter end last night on the Campus Rink, when the Science All Stars met and defeated the All Stars of the School of Commerce by the score of 3-2.

Science have been winning their games consistently, and did not expect a very hard time of it with Commerce. However, when they took the ice they found they were up against a hard working, determined outfit.

Play started with a rush, raging all over the ice, with no attempting at combination. Suddenly, by exceptional foresight or eyesight, Science discovered that there was no goal judge behind the financier's net. When this deficiency had been supplied the game continued as before. Finally, the rubber reached the boiler makers' end of the ice. One of the captains of industry reaching the puck, before any of the opposing team, attempted to shoot the puck to the front of the goal. He was not lucky enough to do this, but hit the goal keeper, off whom it caromed into the plumbers' nets, much to the delight of the Commerce supporters present, but also to the discomfort of the few Science men who had obtained a few minutes off from their ten hour day to see the game.

Substitution of men began now, and each team tried to outdo the other in the race to and from the bench. Before the period ended Science scored a well earned goal. The teams retired at the end of the period with the score one all.

With the opening part of the second stanza prospects for a scrap looked decidedly bright, but the referee decided several times that various members of each team should retire to the bench for the good of their health. Science took advantage of one Commerce man's absence, and pushed another score amid the howls from the supporters, and the groans of the fish from the Commercial. While science were not being outdone in the art of bench warming, a scrimmage, ended around the plumbers' net and another score was chalked up to the credit of Commerce.

After this, play assumed a distinctly snappy and rough aspect. Science displayed some very fine, although unexpected combination, and shortly before the end of the period the mechanics obtained the deciding score and a very good shot from the side.

For Science Luxton was the outstanding man on the team, proving himself to be a very able player, and a hard working all-round man. It was in no small measure due to him that Science came out on the long end of the score.

The line-ups were as follows:

Science.	Commerce.

McGill is sending a very formidable aggregation of boxers, wrestlers and fencers to the Limestone City, and they have high hopes of capturing first place in the Assault this year.

ARTS HOCKEY TEAM BEATEN BY MACS

Visitors Outplayed Their Opponents in Speed and Combination

The fast-travelling Macdonald team defeated the All Star Arts team in a scheduled inter-faculty hockey game yesterday evening on the Campus Rink by a score of 4-1.

The Macs are a speedy aggregation, and showed some good combination. It was in this department that the Arts team fell badly down. The outstanding player on the ice was James, the right wing man on the Macdonald team. All the goals scored for the Aggies were netted by him.

The Arts men started out strongly, and the first and last goal was scored for them by Allan. Macdonald soon followed, and James sent the rubber through for their first one by drawing the opposing goaler out of the goal and shooting the puck into the unguarded net.

The Arts' defence was checking well, and the Mac team found it difficult to break through the defence. James came down the ice and on a swift side shot scored the second goal for his side. The first period ended with the score 2-1 in favor of the Macdonald squad.

The Arts team tried hard to even up the score, but could not get any shots by the goaler. They were losing many good chances to score by shooting wide of the net.

The final for the All Star Arts team gain turned up in the person of James, who got the third goal for his team safely by the Arts goaler. The fourth goal was also scored by James. The game ended with the score 4-1 for the visitors.

Coleman refereed the game.

of underestimating the winners, for the Freshmen immediately proceeded to force the play, and the ball stayed in Med. '27 territory, with the winners shooting from all angles, but at first without success. Landry, however, soon secured the ball and dribbling up the floor, shot, but missed. He was on top of his rebound, and batted it in with one hand, opening the scoring and sending the Freshman rooters into paroxysms of joy. The same player caged another about a minute after the face-off. Goldberg was dazed by a collision with an opponent, and Med. '28 took timeout.

Koff tipped the ball to Landry, who shot and scored. Score: Med. '28, 6; Med. '27, 0. McKinnon checked Dunn in the middle of the floor, and securing the ball tried a long shot which sailed straight and true to the basket, and then dropped through, cleanly. Med. '28 again asked for time out. Goldberg netted a neat goal on a pass from Koff. Med. '28 were awarded a penalty throw which Koff shot and scored, making the score read 11-0. The referee began to hand out numerous free throws, and Rapkine finally answered the frantic calls of the Med. '27 rooters by netting one. This seemed to instil a new lease of life into the Sophomores, and Dunn and Rapkine each scored in quick succession. With half a minute left, Med. '28 took time out again. The first period ended with the score 11-5 in favor of Med. '28.

Immediately after the face-off, Landry and Koff combined, the latter scoring. Koff netted two consecutive free throws. Reardon replaced Snow. Koff grabbed Goldberg's rebound and tossed it in. Score: Med. '27, 17; Med. '28, 5. Wright replaced Martin. Rapkine took Dunn's pass and scored. Rubin went on in place of Rapkine. Wright caught the rebound of Koff's free throw, and scored. Rubin dribbled the ball down the side, and caged a pretty one from outside of the defence. Koff shot suddenly from a scramble under the net and scored. Score: 21-9.

Play at this stage became fast and spectacular, with the penalties increasing proportionately. Riordan scored a point for his side in this way, and Koff, not to be outdone, did likewise. Rubin retired in favor of Rapkine. Dunn tallied from a difficult angle, and secured another point by a free shot. Goldberg shot from far out, but the ball had the right twist and dropped in. Koff made another successful free throw. Rapkine bulged the twine with a pretty goal from the side. He committed his fourth personal foul a moment later, and was forced to leave the floor. Snow replaced him. Landry got the ball on a throw out by

A great number of college students rise in unison to shout "Hear! Hear!"

A local paper informs us that "McGill Skiers Take Meet."

Sounds like some of the Red and White athletes were failing to observe Lent.

It has been recently announced that "the intercollegiate assault-at-arms at Kingston did not take place, owing to the fact that Queen's and Toronto failed to notify McGill that the date had been advanced one week."

Of course, had McGill been informed of the postponement, the meet would, no doubt, have been a huge success.

We notice that the case of a prominent McGill student who wrenched his knee on Saturday is mentioned in a newspaper column referring to serious accidents on the mountain.

Undoubtedly the incident of the Science student who broke his ski in a valiant attempt to save a poodle from injury will appear under "Kennel Notes."

BOUILLON NOW HOLDS BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP

By defeating A. Levy to the tune of 250 to 184, E. L. Bouillon became billiard champion of the College. Bouillon played a steadier game throughout, and made some very neat shots which gained for him the applause of the audience.

Prior to this the championship was held by W. Bouillon of Arts '26, brother of the present title holder.

Koff, and scored. Goldberg duplicated after receiving a pass from Landry. Dunn caught Snow's long pass, and turning quickly, netted the prettiest goal of the game, being almost horizontal to the basket, some way out. Riordan made the last point for his side, incidentally ending the scoring on a free shot. Martin came on once more and Wright retired.

The rest of the game was without special incident, and the whistle blew with the score standing 28-18 in favor of Med. '28.

DIOCESANS ARE DEFEATED BY P.C.

Basketball Game Ends in
21-7 Score

Yesterday evening, the P. C. five sent the Diocesan Basketball team down to a decisive defeat on the Molson Hall floor, the game ending with the score 21 to 7 in favor of the former. The game was loosely played, and very few thrills were supplied, and was unmarked by anything spectacular, or even by anything that resembled good basketball.

The pick of the men on the floor was Woodhouse, who in addition to being the best all round man, was the high scorer for the day. Woodhouse sent in ten baskets from the field and three from the foul line, netting in all twenty-three points for his team.

Each of the P. C. men found the goal at least once during the game, Avison, Lindsay and Woodhouse coming in for extra scores.

The second period was by far the better of the two, the men playing a much less erratic game after the first fifteen minutes on the floor.

MCGILL TO MEET VARSITY IN POLO

Game Saturday at Central 'Y' Tank

There will be a very important practice of the water polo team this evening at the Central Y.M.C.A. tank at 5:15 p.m. sharp. Bearing in mind the fact that the game with Varsity is to take place this Saturday evening, the importance of this practice cannot be overestimated. The senior team is badly in need of some really good material to work against in their practices, so that every man who has played the game at any time should make it his business to attend this workout.

At the present time Varsity has a lead of three goals over McGill, and if the red and white hope to cut down and overcome this handicap they must put up a brand of water polo nothing short of stellar. The important game with Varsity comes this Saturday at the Central Y. Rooters are expected to turn out in full force to support their team. Tickets for the game may be obtained from the Tuck Shop. Reserved seats 75 cents; general admission 50 cents.

The following men are requested to turn out for practice tonight at 5:15 p.m. sharp: Vernot, Ross, Browne, Laidley, Anson, Vickerson, Kyle, Forsythe, Munro, Moore, Jardine, Phipps, Williams, Allcorn, Bethel and any others.

C.A. intermediate team. These two teams have played before and the Central "Y" won when they met on the "Y" floor. The McGill intermediates have been playing with the seniors all through the season and for the most part have been out to every practice, so that although they have been overwhelmed in the practice games, they have developed a clean cut and fast style of play which is most noticeable when they get into action against a team of their own caliber.

In the Senior Intercollegiate game both teams have their backs to the wall, and both teams must win. The result of the game is far from within the range of any forecast. Queen's have a fighting team, and with so much at stake there is no telling what heights their playing can reach. McGill also has a team that, when once they lit their stride, are hard to stop.

The Senior and Intermediate A teams are to practice tonight at six o'clock in the High School.

"Theatre Night" and Annual Dinner Discussed
Yesterday

The question as to the exact nature of the "show" to be staged by the Law Undergraduates' Society at the McGill theatre night is still undecided, notwithstanding the fact that a committee composed of Miss Monk of Third Year and Mr. Gaboury and S. D. Pierce of First Year, was chosen to attend to the details of the production and to contract for the hiring of the requisite settings. There was a representative gathering on hand yesterday morning when the meeting called for the purpose of electing the above committee came to order, and after some discussion it was decided that it would be wise to give the matter mature consideration before coming to final conclusion as to the act to be presented. Another item of business which elicited wide concern was that of the annual banquet, which will take place in the Queens Hotel on the sixth of next month. Tickets will soon be in the hands of the Dinner Committee and the members of the Law Undergraduates' Society will obtain their cardboards from this committee.

AT THE IMPERIA

A rather variegated bill is presented this week to its patrons by the management of the Imperial Theatre. It includes a movie of the hair-raising type, dancing, skits, comedy and acrobatic stunts, and although not of an exceptional merit, yet it might be termed "entertaining."

Probably the headliner, if it may be called as such, is the skit, "After the Polo Game," presented by Guy J. Sampson and Lily Leonhard, a pair of former musical comedy fame. Mr. Sampson is an exceptionally clever comedian, and a dancer of no mean ability. Together with his partner, they put across a delightful line of patter, while Miss Leonhard sings exceedingly well. They are assisted by "the Professor," who supplies a rather impossible rendition on the piano of the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," from Chauve Souris. Joe Rolley, as a black-faced comedian, uses a rolling-chair to transport his fun to the stage, in an act going under the caption of "At Palm Beach." He comes across with some wit which is really quite novel, and also shows a rare ability to twist his lips around a mouth organ.

Brooks and Morgan attempt to present an act which includes songs and chatter, while Danny Dugan proved himself an exceptional dancer, with the able assistance of an expert young woman dancer and a xylophonist. More music is brought out of a xylophone by the Misses June and Irene Melva, while McLinn and Sully put chairs to uses never intended for them. Their balancing work on the chairs and also on triple horizontal bars was really fine and their comedy genuinely original.

Marjorie Daw again acquits herself quite splendidly in the somewhat minor part which she plays in "Fifty

PHYSIOLOGICAL SOCIETY TO MEET

George Scarth, M.A., Will Address Gathering Tonight

As previously announced, the Physiological Society is to meet to-night at 8.15. Mr. George Scarth M.A., who has been investigating the phenomena involved in protoplasmic contraction, will discuss the results of his observations in this field of study. Lantern slides will be employed to make the facts presented more clear and impressive.

As in the case of most of the addresses delivered to the Society, the subject-matter of Mr. Scarth's paper is not to be found in any text-book, and those attending the meeting will therefore once more have the privilege of obtaining first-hand information. In connection with the subject of protoplasmic contraction, a student of medicine at once thinks of the contraction of muscle, to explain which no satisfactory theory has yet been proposed. Because of its direct bearing on such practical problems, the address to be given to-night would appeal to a large audience. As usual the meeting will be held in the large lecture-room of the Biological Building.

Candles. Bertram Grossby and Edward Burns play the leading male roles in this mystery picture, which furnishes thrills galore. Two murders furnish the cause for calling in the detective force, and as usual the story hinges around the accusation of an innocent party. A Chinaman servant, however, confesses as having committed the deed, and with the exception of himself, "all are happy."

AT THE CAPITOL

The screen version of F. Scott Fitzgerald's popular novel, "The Beautiful and Damned," forms the chief item of this week's bill. The main events of the story have been followed to a more than usual degree of accuracy, but it is questionable whether Mr. Fitzgerald would agree with the closing scene as furnished by the movie producer.

The story deals with the life of two young New Yorkers, Anthony Patch, grandson of a famous multi-millionaire, and his young, beautiful, but irresponsible and selfish wife, Gloria. Both have been reared in atmospheres of extreme luxury, and neither have any idea in life but getting the most pleasure out of it. It is therefore small wonder that, when their inheritance is cut off—as the result of the millionaire grandfather breaking in on one of the Patch's frequent revels, in which Bacchus plays the leading part—they are seen on their third wedding anniversary in a state which could hardly be called perfect conjugal bliss. The lowest depths of their degradation are reached when Anthony is thrown into the street after a brawl with an ancient flame of Gloria's. The climax, with its startling turn of affairs for the young people, is very un-

Interesting and Instructive
Address at Sunday's Meeting

On Sunday afternoon, in the Blue Room of the Windsor Hotel, the Macabean Circle held a well attended and interesting meeting. Professor A. R. Gordon professor of Hebrew in McGill University, and professor of Old Testament Literature in the Theological Colleges delivered a very instructive address on the "Moral Development of the Prophets."

Discussing first the prophet Amos, Professor Gordon said that that prophet called for justice instead of sacrifice. It was Amos who first applied the cause and effect logic to morality. Morality, according to him consisted in doing justice. By justice he meant a square deal in business and a honest day's work. The great need at present was to have Amos' message brought home to the people today.

The world, he continued, would be cold if there were nothing but justice; the spirit of brotherhood is also a necessity. This principle was enunciated by a contemporary of Amos, Hosea. Hosea believed that God is just what man is at his best, and a little more besides. He said that God does not want sacrifices, but love. Love includes justice, in fact it is the fulfilment of justice.

The gospel of love is sometimes misrepresented and treated as a sort of silly sentimentalism. To correct this misapprehension came Isaiah, he preached "Not sacrifice, but holiness." Holiness, for Isaiah meant a combination of justice and love—a loving justice, and a just love. When justice is tempered with love, then the people work together and prosperity is the inevitable result.

The next prophet that came up for discussion was Micah. Him Professor Gordon described as being a democrat to the core, as opposed to Isaiah, who was It was Micah's belief that the true wealth of nations lay in home life. Micah said, summing up the words of his predecessors, "do justice, delight in love and walk humbly before God."

In ancient times morality was limited to the family circle. "Stand by your kindred against your enemies" was the motto of the time. Morality towards foreigners was a thing entirely unknown.

looked for, and those who have read the book will not, we think, agree with the method of treating it, as the whole satirical situation created by the author is lost.

The film is, however, well worth seeing, the title roles being well filled by Marie Prevost as Gloria, and Kenneth Harlan as Anthony. Miss Prevost portrays the capricious, irresponsible society girl in excellent fashion, while Harlan, as Anthony, does very good work.

The "Capitol Jazzmanians" provide a very pleasing interlude between pictures, their offering of the jazziest jazz being interspersed with more classical numbers, both of which are very well rendered. Lyle Evans and Genevieve Finney assist them with song and dance.

The usual News and Comedy items complete a very fair bill.

It was Amos who opened the doors towards foreigners and neighbors. He applied the same moral principles to all nations. It was Amos who made morality synonymous with humanity.

Following Professor Gordon's address, a discussion on the subject was entered into by the members of the society. Dr. Gordon answered the questions of the members as put to him.

Harry Batshaw treasurer of the society reported on the recent dance whilst Otto Klinenberg president, mentioned that the debate with Toronto would be held either on March 3 or 10 the date finally decided upon would be announced in a few days. In all probability the debate would take place in the large hall of the new synagogue at Westmount, and would be followed by an informal dance. The subject has not yet been decided upon but this, too was to be announced in the course of the week.

CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY CONFESSEDLY BANKRUPT

The affairs of the Calcutta University, the premier university in India, seem in greater confusion than ever. It will be remembered that the university, as is generally believed in consequence of its own financial mismanagement, is in dire financial straits. The Government has offered assistance, but under conditions. The university through the mouthpiece of Sir Asutosh Mukherjee, its very learned and eloquent vice-chancellor, has fiercely denounced the Government for imposing conditions which any business man would expect.

"Freedom first, freedom last, and freedom all the time," the Vice-Chancellor rhetorically exclaimed, "rather than accept conditions which are tantamount to slavery, I and all the other members of the senate will beg our way from door to door." This is hopelessly overdone rhetoric, and the temperate reply of P. C. Miller, the Bengal Minister for Education, is in pleasing contrast.

The university over which Sir Asutosh presides is confessedly bankrupt; there has been much to criticize in the recent financial administration of the university, and the rhetoric which speaks of raising funds from door to door is singularly akin to that employed by Mr. Gandhi and the All India Congress in their attempt to found national universities and colleges two years ago.

Through no fault of the Government, which itself had its own annual deficit, previous applications from the university for assistance had not yet been met by the Government. The latter had, however, stated in its latest communication that they were prepared to find 250,000 rupees and might indeed ask the Legislative Council to vote a further sum.

The causes of the deplorable condition in which the university found itself were summed up by the Auditor-General as due to a falling off in new receipts; want of a reserve fund, the teaching obligations of the Calcutta University, and its affiliated bodies; want of proper financial control; want of an office manual; disregard of budget rules; want of scrupany of actual expenditures compared with estimates, untimely preparation of the estimates.

Mr. Miller on behalf of the Government went on to explain that the Government made no claim to interference in academic matters, and had refused on one occasion to intervene although called on to do so by Munomadan members of the Legislative Council. But as regards financial matters Mr. Miller very fairly added that the "Legislative Council, before it voted a single rupee from the tax-payers' money was entitled to full information about the financial affairs of Calcutta University so that the members can vote intelligently and conscientiously and with due regard to their responsibilities to the tax-payer."

It is just this claim which the Vice-Chancellor, seems prepared to deny, and in consequence has swayed public opinion overwhelmingly against him.

Guest: "You say dinner's ready? Where do I wash?"

Host: "Why — er — that's up to you."
